CUSTER'S DEFEAT.

Full Details of the Disaster.

GEN. TERRY'S OFFICIAL REPORT.

CHICAGO, July 7.—The Times' Bismarck special gives the following particulars of the Custer massacre: In a recent dispatch I informed you that Custer expected to strike the Indians and give them battle on the 24th. He left the mouth of the Rosebud on the 22d with twelve companies of the 7th cavalry, striking the trail where Reno left it, leading in the direction of the Little Horn, a branch of the Big Horn. On the evening of the 24th scouts discovered a fresh trail, and on the morning of the 25th discovered an Indian village 20 miles above the mouth of the Little Horn, about three miles long and a half a mile wide, fifteen miles away. Custer pushed his command rapidly, though they had made a long march of 78 miles in the 24 hours preceding the battle, and when near the village struck an abandoned tepee, while the Indians were moving in hot haste as if in retreat. Reno, with seven companies of the 7th cavalry, was ordered to the left to attack the village at its head, while Custer, with 5 companies, went to the right and commenced a vigorous attack. Reno felt of them with three companies of cavalry, and was almost immediately surrounded, and after an hour or more of desperate fighting, during which he lost Lts. Hodgson and McIntosh, Dr DeWolf and 12 men with several Indian scouts killed and many wounded. He cut his way through the Indians, crossed the river and gained a bluff 300 feet in height, where he entrenched and was soon joined by Colonel Benton with four companies. In the meantime the Indians resumed the attack, which had abated in vigor for an hour or so, making repeated and desperate charges, which were repulsed with great slaughter to the Indians. They gained higher bluffs, however, than the one occupied by Reno, and as their arms were longer range and better than the cavalry, they kept up a galling fire until nightfall. During the night Reno strengthened his position, and was prepared for the attack, which was renewed at daylight.

The day wore on. Reno had lost in killed and wounded a large portion of his command,—forty odd having been killed before the bluff was reached, many of them in hand-to-hand conflict with the Indians, who outnumbered them ten to one, and his men had been without water thirty-six hours. The appeals of the wounded for water were, indeed, heartrending, while the others were almost exhausted,—in many instances their tongues protruding from their mouths, and few could speak aloud. They tried to eat crackers but could not moisten them, while the grass blades which some ate to give relief, clung to their parched lips. In this state of affairs they determined to gain water at all hazards, and Col. Benton made a sally with his company and routed the main portion of the Indians, who were guarding the approach to the river, to which the soldiers ventured to go with camp kettles and canteens for water. The Indian sharpshooters were nearly opposite the mouth of the ravine through which the brave boys approached the river, but the attempt was made, and though one man was killed and seven wounded, the water was gained and the command relieved. When the fighting ceased for the night, Reno caused his animals to be likewise relieved, and further prepared for the attack which he knew would be resumed on the next morning. Officers and men kept in good heart, but all wondered what had become of Custer. There had been 48 hours' fighting and no word from their respected commander. Twenty-four hours more fighting, and suspense ensued when the Indians abandoned their village in great confusion. Then Reno knew that succor was near. Gen. Terry, with Gibbon's command and his own infantry, had arrived, and, as the comrades in arms met, strong men wept on the necks of each other. After congratulations to the gallant commander for his successful defense, inquiries were made for Custer, but none could tell where he was.

Soon an officer came rushing into camp and related that he had found Custer dead and stripped naked, but not mutilated; and near him his two brothers, Cols. Tom and Boston Custer; his brother-in-law, Col. Calhoun, and nephew, Col. Yates, Col. Keogh, Capt. Smith, Lieut. Crittenden (son of Gen. Crittenden), Lieut. Sturgis (son of Gen. Sturgis), Col. Cooke, Lieut. Porter, Lieut. Harrington, Dr. Lord, Mark Kellogg, the Bismarck Tribune reporter (the only correspondent with the expedition), and 190 men and scouts.

Custer went into the battle with Cos. C, L, I, F and E of the Seventh cavalry, with the staff and non-commissioned staff of his regiment, and a number of scouts, and only one Crow scout remains to tell the tale.

Custer was surrounded on every side by the Indians, and his men and horses fell as they fought on the skirmish line or in the line of battle. Custer was among the last to fall; but when his cheering voice was no longer heard the Indians made comparatively easy work of the remainder. The bodies of all save the Tribune correspondent alone were stripped and most of them horribly mutilated. Custer was not mutilated; he was shot through the body and through the head. Kellogg lay in the field as he fell, undisturbed. Perhaps even the Indians, who had learned to fear and respect Custer had also realized the power of lead pencil and had come to respect those who wield it. The troops cared for the wounded and buried the dead, and returned to their base for supplies and instructions from the General of the army.

Col. Smith, of Gen. Terry's staff, arrived last night with dispatches and with the wounded, 35 in number, aside from 13 who died on the way on the Far West, which left the mouth of the Big Horn at 12 o'clock in the morning of Monday, arriving here, traveling 90 miles by steamer, in less than 36 hours.

The Indians lost heavily in battle. When Terry reached their village the camp was strewn with robes gaudily painted, with finely dressed hides and interesting or valuable Indian trinkets. In a burial tent they left nine of their chiefs whose spirits had flown to the happy hunting ground, arrayed most gorgeously. In the ravines the dead were abandoned by the Indians, evidently in their solicitude for the wounded. There was found the Crow scout, who survived the battle by hiding in a ravine. He believes their loss to have been greater than the loss of the whites, for in the battle they were so much more numerous and were the assaulting party after the first day. Col. Reno and his officers agree with this estimate. The village numbered 1,800 lodges and many willow tepees had been added within a few days. It is believed by those who fought that the warriors must have numbered 4,000.

General Terry feels deeply the loss, and feels it the more keenly as Gen. Custer was directed to find and feel the Indians, but not to fight them, unless Terry arrived with the infantry. With Gibbons' column he had arranged to reach the mouth of Little Horn on the evening of June 26th, when Custer was to communicate with him and be governed by his directions in the fight to follow. Custer made the attack on the 25th, and after one hour's fighting, no man of those who fought so gallantly was left to tell the story. General Terry has submitted, through Col. Smith, his plan of campaign to Gen. Sheridan, and the action to be taken will depend on the answer given. Meanwhile Terry will await supplies, provisions and clothing, of which his command are nearly destitute. The names of all the officers killed or wounded have been given. The casualties foot up 261 killed and 52 wounded. Thirty-eight of the wounded were brought to Fort Lincoln, and the remainder, excepting the three who died, were cared for on the field. Charley Reynolds was also killed. Reynolds, with Kellogg, DeWolf, Reed, Boston Custer and Lord were the only citizens killed.

Official Report of Gen. Terry.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The following is the official report of Gen. Terry, of Custer's engagement with the Indians, received at headquarters of General Sheridan to-day:

HEADQUARTERS DIVISION OF DAKOTAH,
CAMP ON LITTLE BIG HORN RIVER, June 27.

To Adjutant General of Military Division of Missouri, at Chicago, Ill.: It is my painful duty to report that day before yesterday, the 25th inst., a great disaster overtook Gen. Custer and the troops under his command. At 12 o'clock on the 22d he departed with his whole regiment and a strong detachment of scouts and guards from the mouth of the Rosebud. Proceeding up that river about 20 miles he struck a very heavy Indian trail which had previously been discovered, and pursuing it, found that it led, as it was supposed that it would, to Little Big Horn river. There he found a village of almost unexampled extent, and at once attacked it with that portion of his force which was immediately at hand. Major Reno, with three companies, A, G and M, of the regiment, was sent into the valley of the stream at a point where the trail struck it. Gen. Custer, with five companies, C, E, F, I and L, attempted to enter also at a point three miles lower down. Reno forded the river and charged down the left bank dismounted and fought until finally, overwhelmed by numbers, he was compelled to mount, recross the river and take refuge on the high bluffs which overlooked its right bank. Just as he recrossed, Capt. Benton, who, with three companies, D, H and K, was some two miles to the left of Reno when the action commenced, but who had been ordered by Gen. Custer to return, came to the river and rightly concluding it was useless for his force to attempt to renew the fight in the valley, he joined Reno on the bluffs. Capt. McDougal with company B, was at first at some distance in the rear with a train of pack mules. He also came up to Reno, and the united force was nearly surrounded by Indians, many of whom armed with rifles occupied positions which commanded the ground held by the cavalry, ground from which there was no escape. Rifle pits were dug and the fight maintained, though with heavy loss, from about half past two of the 25th until six o'clock of the 26th, when the Indians withdrew from the valley taking with them their village.

Of the movements of Gen. Custer and the five companies with his immediate command scarcely anything is known from those who witnessed them, for no officer or soldier who accompanied him has been found alive. His trail from the point where Reno crossed the stream passes along and in the rear of the crest of the bluffs on the right bank for nearly or about three miles, then comes down to the bank of the river, but at once diverted from it as though he had unsuccessfully attempted to cross; then turns upon itself and almost completes a circle and is marked by the remains of his officers and men, and the bodies of his horses, some of them dropped along the path, others heaped where halts appear to have been made. There is abundant evidence that a gallant resistance was offered by the troops, but they were beset on all sides by overpowering numbers. The officers known to be killed are Gen. Custer, Capts. Keogh, Yates and Custer, Lieuts. Smith, Cook, McIntosh, Calhoun, Porter, Hodgson, Sturgis and Reilly of the cavalry, Lieut. Crittenden of the 20th infantry, and acting assistant surgeon DeWolf. Lieut. Harrington of the cavalry, and assistant surgeon Lord, are missing. Capt. Benton and Lieut. Barnum of the cavalry, are slightly wounded. Mr. Benton, Custer's brother, and Mr. Read, nephew of Gen. Custer, were with him and were killed. No other officers than those whom I have named are among the killed, wounded and missing. It is impossible, as yet, to obtain a reliable list of enlisted men who were killed and wounded, but the number killed, including officers, must reach 250. The number of wounded is 51.

At the mouth of the Rosebud, I informed General Custer that I should take the supply steamer Far West up the Yellowstone to ferry General Gibbon's column over the river; that I should personally accompany that column, and that it would in all probability reach the mouth of the Little Big Horn on the 26th inst. The steamer reached General Gibbon's troops near the mouth of the Big Horn river early on the morning of the 24th, and at 4 o'clock P. M. all his men and animals were across the Yellowstone. At 5 o'clock the column, consisting of 14 companies of the second cavalry and a battery of three Gatling guns, marched out to and across Tulloch's creek. Starting soon after 5 o'clock on the morning of the 25th, the infantry made a march of twenty two miles over the most difficult country I ever saw, in order that troops might be sent into the valley of the Little Big Horn. The cavalry, with the battery, was then pushed on thirteen or fourteen miles further, reaching camp at midnight. Scouts were sent out at 4:30 on the morning of the 26th, who discovered three Indians who were at first supposed to be Sioux, but when overtaken proved to be Crows who had been with Custer. They brought the first intelligence of the battle. Their story was not credited. It was supposed some fighting, perhaps severe fighting had taken place, but it was not thought possible that disaster could have overtaken such a large force, as twelve companies of cavalry. The infantry, which had broken camp very early, soon came up and the whole column united and moved up the valley of the Little Big Horn. During the operation efforts were made to send scouts to what was supposed to be Gen. Custer's position, and to obtain information of the condition of the forces, but those who were sent were driven back by parties of Indians who, in increasing numbers, were seen hovering on Gibbon's front. At 20 minutes before 9 in the evening the infantry had marched between 29 and 30 miles, the men were very weary and daylight was failing. The column therefore halted for the night at a point about 11 miles in a straight line above the stream. This morning the movement resumed, and after a march of nine miles Maj. Reno's entrenched position was reached.

The withdrawal of the Indians from around Reno's command and from the valley was undoubtedly caused by the appearance of Gibbon's troops. Maj. Reno and Capt. Benton, both of whom are officers of great experience, accustomed to seeing large masses of mounted men, estimated the number of Indians engaged at not less than 2,500; other officers think the number greater than this. The village in the valley was about three miles in length and about a mile wide. Besides lodges proper a great number of temporary brush shelters were found in it, indicating that many men besides its proper inhabitants gathered together there. Maj. Reno is very confident that there were a number of white men fighting with the Indians. It is believed the loss of the Indians was large. I have as yet received no official reports relating to the fight, but what I have stated is gathered from officers who were on the ground and from those who have been over it since.

General Crook Heard From.

OMAHA, July 8.—Captain Nickerson, of General Crook's staff, who went out with the expedition, returned to Omaha yesterday. He left Crook on one of the forks of Tongue river, 186 miles from Fort Fetterman, and 65 miles from the railroad. The command is awaiting the arrival of supplies and reinforcements. The latter, consisting of five companies, left Fort Fetterman July 4th and expected to reach Crook about the 12th. He will also be joined about Monday by about 150 Snake Indians. These with the troops will increase the number of men to over 1,100. Nickerson does not apprehend any danger to the expedition. Crook's location is not over 70 miles from the scene of Custer's massacre.

Dispatch from Gen. Sheridan.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The following dispatch was received this morning:

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., July 8.

To Gen. W. T. Sherman:—Your dispatch received. I think it premature to think of asking for volunteer cavalry with the attendant expenses. If the six companies of the 22d infantry are given to Terry he will have about 2,000. Crook in a few days will have 1,500 men and I will send Merritt's company of the fifth cavalry, over 100 strong, which will make him over 2,000 strong. We are all right; give us a little time. I deeply deplore the loss of Custer and his officers and men. I fear it was an unnecessary sacrifice, due to misapprehension and superabundance of courage—the latter was extraordinarily developed in Custer. I will keep in constant communication, and if I should see the slightest necessity of additional mounted men, which unfortunately cannot be furnished from my meagre command, I will not hesitate to ask for them, and if Congress will give the 2,500 which I have asked for the past two years for establishing posts at Tongue river, and the mouth of Big Horn, it will be in the interest of economy, and will settle the Sioux question. It should be remembered that the loss of Custer and the men with him, must have been attended by at least a corresponding loss on the part of the Indians.

(Signed) P. H. SHERIDAN, Lt.-Gen.

Sheridan Sends Reinforcements.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Another dispatch from General Sheridan to General Sherman says he has notified Terry that six companies of the fifth cavalry, under General Miles, will immediately join him, and also that he has requested General Sherman to send from Lake stations six companies of the twenty second infantry to join him. General Sheridan further says he has also notified General Crook of this fact, and if he requires additional force than the five companies already sent, he can order eight companies of infantry under General Merritt to join him. There is nothing to be regretted but the death of Custer's officers and men, with whom it would have been easy to have handled the Indians if Custer had waited for the junction. There is no need for uneasiness, and will give the Indians another turn. I will be in Chicago by the first train. General Sherman does not think the Indians now number more than 2,500 or 4,000, and must be greatly embarrassed by their wounds.

Gen. Miles has the reputation of being one of the best Indian fighters in the army.

DETROIT, Mich., July 8.—The 22d regiment of U. S. Infantry, stationed at Fort Wayne, in this city, has received orders to join Gen. Terry at Fort Lincoln. A special train is in waiting to transport them.

Inquiries into the Disaster in Congress.

Banning asked to have present consideration of the resolution calling on the Secretary of War to report the object of the expeditions under Generals Crook and Terry, now operating against the Northwestern Indians, with all the correspondence bearing on the origin of the expedition, and all the military orders issued by the War Department, etc.

Young, of Tennessee, objected, as he desired to offer a resolution himself on the same subject.

Boone, from the committee on Indian affairs, called up the bill for the appointment of commissioners to treat with the Sioux Indians for the cession of the Black Hills.

Conger having raised the question of consideration, the House decided by 31 to 85 not to consider at this time.

House then took up bill reported by the committee on Indian affairs, declaring the country north of North Platte river and east of the summit of the Big Horn mountains, in Wyoming Territory, open to exploration and settlement.

Fort inquired if the late disastrous battle with Indians had taken place in the country affected by the bill.

Steele, of Wyoming, stated it was not a fact that the military operations were carried on without reference to the peace policy. In 1866 the United States made a treaty with the Sioux nation which was a gross mistake if it was not a dishonor and disgrace. That treaty had been the foundation of all the difficulties with the Sioux and the cause of the death of Custer and his men. In that Big Horn country in 1866, Gen. Pope established posts at Fort Phil Kearney, Reno and Smith to open the roads to Montana and to protect the country of friendly Crows from the hostile Sioux. In keeping those posts and opening that road many men, citizens and soldiers, had been killed. Notable among the actions that had taken place was the massacre of Fetterman and his command at Fort Phil Kearney—96 men and officers—and yet after these men had sacrificed their lives the Government went to work and made a treaty by which it ignominiously abandoned that country to these savages, dismantling its own posts and leaving there the bones of the men who had laid down their lives in the wilderness. Is it to be wondered at under these circumstances that Sitting Bull and men believed they were superior to the General Government. Anybody who knows anything about the Indian nature, knows that the legitimate result of that cowardly policy of peace at any price was only to defer the evil day which has now come upon us. Since then Sioux have been constantly depredating in Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana, and more men have fallen there in peaceful avocations of life, without a murmur being heard, than fell under the gallant Custer on the 25th of June. The friendly Crows have been raided upon with every full moon, as have the Shoshones, and at last these outrages have become so great and so long continued that the peaceful Indians could not stand them any longer, and called on the military arm to punish these men. It was in carrying out this that Custer and his soldiers have been sacrificed. I was up in that country last at the time the commissioners were there attending negotiations with the Sioux. At that time, afraid of his host, the chieftain of the Ogallalla tribe and the man who by birth is entitled to rule over these people, told me there was not in that country, under Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse, more than from one to two hundred lodges which would not give them over 600 fighting men all told. Yet the report which we now have is that there were 1,800 lodges, aggregating 3,500 or 4,000 fighting men, in the encampment or village attacked by Custer. Where did these men come from? They came from agencies where they had been fed and fattened by our government and where they had been better armed than the soldiers are. They came from reservations to fight our troops, and if the present peace policy is continued, they will go back there as soon as the snow falls to feed themselves and ponies for new operations next spring.

In the House of Representatives, after Steele's speech, Page, who originally introduced the bill and afterwards reported it from the committee on Indian affairs, remarked that the bill had no reference to the late Indian war, and that all discussion on that point was entirely out of place.

Kasson read from the treaty with the Sioux to show that the United States agreed in the 16th article of the treaty, providing that the very country which this bill proposed to throw open to exploration and settlement was to be held as unceded Indian territory, and that no white person should be permitted to settle on it or pass through it without the consent of the Indians.

Page denied that was the force or object of the bill. The bill contemplated throwing open to exploration that part of the country referred to in article II of the treaty. It never had been contemplated by the treaty that all of the country north of the North Platte river and east of Big Horn mountain, outside of the Indian reservation, should be forever excluded from settlement. This bill simply provided that that part of the country outside of the Indian reservation, and which was rich in mineral wealth, should be opened for settlement.

Kasson said this bill opens it also to settlement.

Page—Very well; why not? Has the gentleman any objection to its being thrown open to settlement?

Kasson—I have, in the face of the treaty made by the United States, which says no white person or persons shall be permitted to settle upon it.

Page—The gentleman will remember the bill provides that no part shall be construed to prevent the Indians from hunting in that Territory.

Kasson—The bill expressly opens the Territory to exploration and settlement, while the treaty says of the same country that no white persons shall be permitted to settle upon or occupy any portion of it.

Page—That refers to 25,000,000 acres embraced within the Sioux reserve.

Kasson—If that is so, the bill would be quite right; but Article 16 of the treaty refers to exactly the same country as that bill refers to.

A long discussion followed, in which many members participated, and the bill went over.

Consultation about the Indian War.

WASHINGTON, July 7.—There was a consultation at White House to-night on the subject of the Indian war. Secretary Cameron and Gen. Sherman were here from Philadelphia in the evening and the President discussed the situation at considerable length. An impression is felt in higher quarters that the troops now in the West near the scene of the present operations against the Indians are numerically as well as in every other respect, able to enforce the demands of the government upon the hostile tribes and to effect proper chastisement upon them.

Gen. Sheridan Gone to Chicago.

PHILADELPHIA, July 7.—To-morrow morning Gen. Sheridan will leave for his headquarters at Chicago, to which place he has been ordered by General Sherman owing to the recent Indian disturbance.

Volunteers from Utah to Avenge Custer.

SALT LAKE, July 7.—A public meeting was held here this evening, at which it was resolved to offer the government a regiment of twelve hundred men from this Territory in ten days to avenge the death of Custer and for the extermination of the Sioux Indians.

A Confederate General Offers his Services to Fight the Sioux.

ST. LOUIS, July 7.—The Republican's morning special says Joe O. Shelby, a noted Confederate general of this State, sent a telegram to President Grant as follows: "General Custer has been killed. We once fought him, and now propose to avenge him. Should you determine to call volunteers, allow Missouri to raise 1,000."

Volunteer Forces to be Called For.

NEW YORK, July 8.—The World's Washington dispatch says the Senators and members from the frontier with one accord favor the organization of volunteer forces of frontiersmen to be put under Crook's command. They say that those men are familiar with Indian ways, and would make a swift campaign.

Complaint that the Indians are Armed by the Government.

Army officers here generally complain of the superior arms which are supplied by the government, in one way or another, to the Indians and deplore the advantage that such mistaken policy gives them.

The victory of the Sioux of course makes the task of whipping them and driving them back to their reservation more difficult, but Sherman feels confident that under Crook's leadership the great disaster of Little Big Horn will be retrieved and the death of our gallant officers avenged.

The Times' Washington dispatch says that it is agreed on all hands that there must now be an Indian war till all the hostile Indians of the Northwest have been chastised and subjugated.

The cause and responsibility of the Little Big Horn massacre are matters of small moment in deciding what shall be done. Western members freely predict that unless extraordinary efforts at defense are immediately made, the miners in the Black Hills and principal settlements in Montana will be harrassed and many of them destroyed. The facts as now understood dispose most people to lay the blame for slaughter upon Custer's imprudence and probable disobedience of orders, but criticism is kindly and charitable in tone, as it would not be had he not fallen with his command in the thickest of the fight. This situation is full of danger and difficulty, the greater part of which would disappear if Sherman and Sheridan had men and supplies and money at their control under conditions favoring immediate and decisive action. Partisan newspapers are already endeavoring to make use of it for political effect, the Democratic journals claiming that as a consequence of keeping the army employed at the South instead of the West and the Republican papers speaking of it as a result of the reduction of the army by measures passed in the House.

The warriors under Sitting Bull are from the Ogallallas, Brules, Blackfeet and Dakotas and in addition there are many Cheyennes and Arrapahoes. They are the bravest and most warlike of the Northern Indians, and the country which they occupy is admirably adapted for defensive warfare. The region in which Crook and Custer have been operating is rugged with deep gorges and canyons interspersed with bad lands. It is a country in which cavalry cannot operate successfully against Indians mounted on their hardy, well trained ponies, and infantry will be altogether useless.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Diplomatic Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The committee of conference on the diplomatic consular appropriation bill met at noon to-day, but failed to agree.

Nominations by the President.

The President nominated Wm. J. Wright, of Maryland, consul at Santa, Brazil; Thos. W. Prosch, postmaster, Seattle, W. T.; Jno. Gossman, agent, Yankton, of Sioux Indians of Dakota.

Asiatic Telegraph Bill Hangs Fire.

The marine telegraph bill, which passed the Senate on Wednesday, has since been recalled from the House and hung up by objection entered by Davis. This bill was defeated in a former Congress in a similar way.

Bill to Compel the Pacific R. R. Cos. to Create a Sinking Fund.

All Pacific coast representatives who were present voted for the passage of Lawrence's bill to compel the Pacific railroads to create a sinking fund for the repayment of their indebtedness to the government. Only nine votes were recorded against it. It passed, but there was a strong opposition mustered against considering it on the question of allowing it to be brought before the House for action yesterday.

F. D. Grant Promoted.

Among the nominations to-day was Second Lieut. F. D. Grant to be first lieutenant 4th cavalry.

Sudden Death of Representative Parsons.

Representative Edward Parsons, of Kentucky, died suddenly this afternoon of congestion of the brain, at his hotel in this city, in the 34th year of his age.

Prostrated by Excessive Heat.

A Washington special says Senator Davis, of West Virginia, was prostrated in the Senate chamber and was carried in a lifeless condition to one of the committee rooms, where the windows were opened. By the prompt application of restoratives he recovered sufficiently to be removed to his residence.

Senator Morton was so overcome with heat that he left the capitol at an early hour and betook himself to his hotel, where he is to-day, lying in front of the hotel on chairs. He was the picture of exhaustion.

Thurman, of Ohio, was rendered so unwell by the heat that he had to keep in his house during the day, notwithstanding the demand on him at the Senate in connection with the Belknap matter. West was obliged for the same reasons to leave the Senate, having been somewhat frightened by the sudden illness of Senator Davis. The temperature in the House of Representatives rose to 90° with a breeze blowing.

Dispatches from Boston, Philadelphia and other neighboring cities report the heat as intense. In this city the thermometer rose to 99° in the shade, and 22 cases of sunstroke were reported.

Democratic Congressmen in a Dilemma.

The St. Louis platform and the pending proposition for the repeal of the resumption act puts the New York Democratic Congressmen in a bad fix, as the legislature instructed them last February to oppose the repeal. Still, it is apparent that the Democrats will now vote against the repeal. The Senate will defeat the bill.

Blanton Duncan Denounces Tilden's Nomination.

Blanton Duncan, who led the straight out Democrats for O'Conor in opposition to Greeley, denounces Tilden's nomination as highly impolitic and sure to bring defeat. He predicts 10,000 Republican majority in Indiana for Hayes of Ohio, and concedes California and Oregon to Hayes because of Democratic soft money. He says the St. Louis platform is double faced and the nominees antagonistic in principle, and that this is an effort to conciliate Democrats. He believes Democrats have thrown away the best chance ever had for success.

Prospect of a Break in the House and Senate Deadlock.

Recent speeches of Senator Morrill, of Maine, and Representatives Garfield and others, showing the real nature of the conflict between the House and Senate on appropriation bills, have produced a powerful impression, and the dead lock will probably be broken next week. If so, it is believed the House will readily share the responsibility of postponing the impeachment trial, and Congress will probably adjourn to escape the intense heat of a Washington summer and participate personally in the political campaign.

The conference committee on the silver bill has not held any meeting.

Secretary Morrill Installed.

Secretary Morrill took charge of the Treasury Department this afternoon.

Naval Investigation.

The examination of Secretary Bristow was agreed to to-day by the House committee on naval affairs. In reference to the deficiency supposed to exist in the funds of certain bureaus, he made a statement setting forth the reasons why certain appropriations had been exhausted. These found their origin last fall in the threatened troubles with Spain, at which time it became necessary in view of our foreign relations to put the navy in condition and position to carry out any policy our government might adopt. Owing to this unexpected state of affairs, the appropriations which would otherwise have been ample were greatly exhausted, leaving some contracts which had been previously made unprovided for.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Mitchell presented a petition signed by 300 miners, merchants, traders and others of Alaska, setting forth grievances, and it alleged that the government in Alaska during the last three or four years had been one of oppression and was not in accordance with the genius of American institutions. He introduced a bill early in the session providing for a civil government in that Territory; but it has not been reported to the Senate by the committee on Territories; by which committee it was considered. Mitchell called the attention of that committee to the subject and hoped some action would soon be taken to provide a civil government for that Territory. The petition was referred to the committee on Territories.

Windom reported favorably on the bill introduced by Hill yesterday extending and continuing for ten days more the act recently passed to provide for the expenditures of the government temporarily.

Anthony reported a bill to extend for a period of ten days more the act recently passed to authorize the Congressional printer to continue the public printing; passed.

Logan moved to take up the House bill to equalize the bounties of the soldiers who served in the late war for the Union; lost 29 to 25.

Logan gave notice he would move to take up the bill every morning and would call for the yeas and nays on his motion.

Kelly, of Oregon, called up the House bill to adjust the claims of owners of land within the limits of the Klamath reservation in Oregon. Pending discussion the hour of 12 o'clock was called, and the Senate resumed the consideration of the articles of impeachment against Belknap.

Klamath Lieu Lands.

The act granting lieu lands to replace the Oregon wagon road lands now occupied by the Klamath reservation, is obstructed in the Senate by the powerful opposition of Edmunds of Vermont. He maintains that the company get no title to these lands because they were reserved by the treaty of October 14, 1864, made by the department to insure the success which is necessary to give assurance of comparative safety to the important but scattered interests which have grown up in that remote and almost inaccessible part of our national domain.

Railway Collision in Switzerland.

BERNE, July 7.—A passenger train from this city for Lausanne, came in collision to-day at Vaux with another coming from Lausanne. Both engines were destroyed, several cars demolished, and 10 persons killed.

Turks Defeated at Rachka.

PARIS, July 7.—An official telegraphic dispatch received at Belgrade announces that after ten hours desperate fighting at Rachka the Turks have fled to Novibazar. The Servians occupied the territory between Rachka and Novibazar. The Servian loss is inconsiderable. The army under Gen. Stach crossed the frontier near Yavor on Thursday. They found the Turks entrenched in a very favorable position and were enabled to dislodge them after five hours severe fighting.

Turkish Account of the Battle of Belina.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 7.—The Porte has sent to its representatives abroad the following: Mukhtar Pasha telegraphs the details of the last engagement at Belina. The enemy's loss exceeded the first estimate. Four hundred of the killed were left in the village of Belina, and 500 in the neighborhood. Among their dead were their commander and several officers. A large Turkish force is now concentrated at Belina.

Massacre at Belina.

LONDON, July 8.—The Standard's dispatch from Belgrade, dated July 6th, says: One hundred and thirty wounded Servians of the army of the Drina have arrived there. They report that during the fighting at Belina, the garrison of the Turkish guard house and the inhabitants defended themselves to the utmost against the Servians in the streets of the town. A terrible massacre ensued, in which almost all the inhabitants perished.

The Report of the Capture of Akhpalanka Confirmed.

LONDON, July 8.—The Times' Vienna correspondent and the Russian telegraphic agency, both confirm the report that Shemayoff has taken Akhpalanka. The Times' Vienna dispatch also reports that the Turks did not take the main position at Sitchicar, but captured the contiguous earthworks. The Servians are throwing up earthworks around Saitschar particularly for the defense of the bridge across the river Timok.

The Turks Besieging Saitchar.

The News' Berlin special reports that the Turks are besieging Saitchar, which has a garrison of 18,000 men.

Reports of Recent Battles.

PARIS, July 8.—Le Soir says all advices received confirm the reports of the march of Tchernayeff. The Courier de France reports that a great engagement has taken place between Tirok and Irawibod. The Turks were dislodged and the road is open to Servia. The Turks lost 700 killed and 100 prisoners at Herol.

Egyptian Troops for Turkey.

A dispatch from Alexandria to the News announces that Gen. Loring, commander in chief of the Egyptian army in Abyssinia, has arrived in Cairo from Massowah. Troops for Constantinople are arriving at Alexandria.

Atrocities in Bulgaria.

LONDON, July 8.—A letter from Constantinople from a correspondent of the News, reprints and quotes evidence in support of his previous assertions in regard to the atrocities in Bulgaria. He gives, as an instance, one case in which 40 women of the village of Tokoselo were burned alive, and cites a consular report placing number of murders committed by Turks at 12,000, while some estimates ran as high as 25,000.

FOURTH AT NORTH YAMHILL.

A special correspondent sends us the following account of the manner in which the Fouth was observed at North Yamhill:

The morning of the Fourth of July, 1876, long to be remembered in the history of our State, dawned upon the beautiful valley of the Yamhill to find not only the people, the public places and private residences decorated in most gorgeous array, but nature, as it were, smiling upon their attempts to be jubilant, had ushered in one of those lovely mornings which are only seen in country places, which, to be appreciated, must be enjoyed among the meadows, the buttercups and the daisies. At an early hour, as per announcement, the citizens began to gather in a beautiful grove near Carlton on the O. C. R. R., and during the entire forenoon a long line of wagons and carriages marked the continuous arrival of people from all parts of Yamhill, Marion and Polk counties, until on every hand could be heard the expression, "Where have all these people come from?" At half past 10 precisely the president, Mr. J. H. Robinson, called the vast assemblage to order and introduced the Rev. M. Hoberg, pastor of the Methodist Church, chaplain of the day, who offered one of those heart-touching, soul-subduing prayers, to hear which is to be benefited. The prayer was followed by an excellent piece of music by the McMinnville band, after which the Hon. Wm. Fenton was introduced as reader of the Declaration of Independence which he did in an able and satisfactory manner. The president of the day then introduced Mr. I. B. Stearns, orator of the day, a young gentleman from Portland and one of whose ability her citizens may well feel proud. I am sorry that I am not able to give the oration in full, for I am sure it would compare favorably with any effort made in Oregon on that day.

But enough. I will not weary your readers with a detailed account of the nice country basket dinner we had after the oration, nor how beautiful the young ladies appeared as "Eyes looked love to eyes that spoke again." No, these little items, which filled both our stomachs and hearts to overflowing, we will pass without comment, and merely add that if you would see an exemplification of the old adage, "Be virtuous and you will be happy," go to the country—go to Yamhill.

Burglars disturbed Father York, of Corvallis, one night last week by breaking into his house in the night-time, but the click of the old gentleman's "Colt" scared them away empty handed.

George Black's cabin, a few miles south of Jacksonville, was totally destroyed by fire one morning last week, at about 4 o'clock. Black and another man sleeping in the cabin at the time barely escaped with their lives.

Joe Solomon's store on Evans' creek, Jackson county, was destroyed by fire on the evening of the Fourth. The fire originated from a defective flue at about 7 o'clock while the clerk was cooking supper. Everything was destroyed except the books and two boxes of tea. The loss is estimated at from $5,000 to $6,000. Insured for $3,000.

New gold mines have recently been discovered on Beaver creek, fourt[illegible] west of LaGrande, and between that point and Senator Jo[illegible] Camp Carson gravel mine. MONDAY MORNING, JULY 10, 1876.

GOVERNOR HAYES' RESIGNATION.

The subject of when Governor Hayes will resign becomes very important to Ohio politicians. By the constitution of the state, if a vacancy in the office of governor occurs thirty days or more prior to a general election, it is to be filled at that election, but if it occurs less than thirty days before the election, the lieutenant governor fills the office till the next general election. Governor Hayes' term does not expire till after the general election of 1877, and if he withholds his resignation until it will fall within the thirty days, Lieutenant Governor Young will fill out the term. The Republicans of Ohio urge him to hold on till late in September, so they will not be embarrassed by a gubernatorial election this fall. Mr. Hayes will, it is thought, accede to this proposition, though the opposition papers will make a very bitter war upon him for so doing. It is not easy to perceive any good reason why he should not remain in office even longer than that. The probability of his being elected President does not, that we know of, disqualify him for Governor of a State. The Presidential election in November will not, in legal contemplation, choose a President. At that time electors will be chosen, but the election of President is an after matter. Hayes may be Governor of Ohio till next February, and then give up the office to take that of Chief Magistrate of the nation. Certainly the Democrats will have no right to complain of his doing so. He was chosen by the people of Ohio to be their governor for a full term, and that, it would naturally be supposed, implies a preference that he hold the office, at least, until he is called upon to relinquish it for the higher duties to which he seems about to be called by the whole country.

THE NEW BOUNTY BILL.

The bill for the equalization of soldiers' bounty which recently passed the House of Representatives, differs in several material particulars from that which passed the last Congress and was vetoed by the President. The other bill provided that every soldier should receive from the government an average bounty of $8 33 per month for the time he served, while this bill proceeds on the same basis, but deducts all bounties already paid under United States or State laws. By this modification many who would have received large bounties under the other bill, will receive nothing if this bill becomes a law, their deducted bounty being equal to all they would be entitled to. The bill also excepts from its benefits all substitutes employed by persons drafted, all persons who were discharged on their own application prior to April 19, 1865, for causes other than disability incurred in the service, unless such discharge was obtained for the purpose of re-enlistment, or on account of promotion. Persons discharged on account of minority are also excluded, no matter upon whose application the discharge was granted, but in case such persons afterwards re-enlisted they are to receive the benefits of the law under their re-enlistment as if the discharge for minority had not been received. From this it will be seen the bill is drawn with much greater care than the former one, and will, if it become a law, more nearly accomplish what is indicated by its title—the equalization of the bounties given to soldiers for service rendered to their country. But it will be unequal to the several States. If the United States government is going to insist upon being credited, in its accounts with the soldiers, with the money paid them by the States which furnished them, it ought then to make the matter equal among the States themselves by paying them, respectively, the amounts withheld from their soldiers.

THE JOURNAL'S PREVARICATION.

The Evening Journal still feels called upon to misrepresent the position of the OREGONIAN, in connection with the remarks we made about the satisfaction with which the Congressional detectives announced that they hoped to be able to prove that President Grant was in the whisky ring. The Journal says the inference that the smellers were delighted at the prospect of unearthing facts connecting the President with the infamous ring is drawn from the single fact that ex-Secretary Bristow and Bluford Wilson have been subpoenaed by the committee. That is far from a fair statement of the case. The subpoenaing of these or any other witnesses for the purpose of getting at the bottom of the whisky transactions is altogether proper, and if complicity of the President is fairly established, that also should be made public. But the Journal, in its editorial remarks, carefully suppresses the most significant part of the dispatch on the subject. That passage wherein it is stated that the committee think they "will be able" to supply the link to connect Grant with the ring is industriously omitted by our Democratic neighbor. The committee think they "will be able." That shows what spirit animates the Democratic smellers. It is not that they hope to "be able" to get at the very truth of the matter, but they hope to "be able" to connect the President of the Republic with infamous frauds upon the Treasury. The people will express, in November, their opinion, of the spirit in which the Democratic majority in Congress have been carrying on their investigations.

Somebody has been applying the test of inductive philosophy to the question whether women, if invested with the elective franchise would vote with their husbands, as is sometimes asserted, and has taken his facts from the records of the granges in California. The result of this curious investigation is published in the Sacramento Union, from which it appears that, of a number of votes taken the women voted the same way their husbands did 394 times, and disagreed with them only 36 times. From this it is inferred that the establishment of woman suffrage would make very little difference in the result of elections, though it would double the number of votes. But the Union makes a suggestion to which it would be well for the inductive philosopher to pay attention, namely, that it does not appear whether the votes of the wives were dictated by the husbands, or those of the husbands by the wives. We beg to add, also, that the mere fact of their disagreeing in so few cases does not necessarily imply that either was the sole dictator of the vote. Nor does it appear that the votes of both were not more nearly in the right than those of either would have been without the influence of the other. The inductive investigator will have to take into account a good many facts besides those of whether the wives and husbands vote the same way, before he can arrive at a satisfactory conclusion as to the probable effect of woman suffrage as a moral agency.

As full accounts as, probably can ever be given, of Custer's defeat, including General Terry's official report, have reached us. The Indians did their bloody work so thoroughly that not one white man escaped death. As is usual with them, they horribly mutilated the dead soldiers, but even the Indians respected the dead soldier, whom living they had been taught in many a hard fought battle to honor and fear. They did not deface the corpse of Custer, but left him as he fell. Nor did they even strip the body of Kellogg, the Tribune correspondent, who was the only man from whom the clothes were not taken.

In writing of the causes which led to this great disaster, we scarcely know in what words to express what seems to us to have been the main one. It is an unenviable task to lay blame upon a tomb, or to speak with disapproval of the dead, and yet there seems to be no way to avoid it. The opinion forces itself upon us that that fearful slaughter of brave men was unnecessarily brought about and that if General Custer had obeyed orders, or at least, if he had been prudent, and waited for General Terry, he and many of his men might have been alive to-day, and the Indians, instead of being defiantly victorious, might have been beaten and subjugated.

The New York Tribune presents a comparative table of passenger arrivals from Europe during the first half of the years 1875 and 1876, from which it appears that, notwithstanding the Centennial celebration, there has been a very considerable falling off from the figures of last year. In anticipation of a vast increase of European travel to America this summer, the steamship lines made preparation to accommodate a much larger number, but their calculations have proved incorrect, and they are now reducing their passenger vessels. The Star and Inman lines, for example, which ran one steamer a week last year, have cut down to three steamers every five weeks. It is reported also, by the same authority, that the freight business of the steamers has fallen off to the same extent as the passenger trade.

Immense mass meetings are holding at various places in England to express the desire of the people for the passage of Sir Wilford Lawson's "Permissive bill," which is the same in substance as the local option laws of the United States. Such a law, in England, will not be in danger of constitutional objection, as in this country, the Parliament there being the final authority. Temperance sentiment has taken a deep hold upon the English people, and it is thought will prove strong enough to secure reasonable restrictive laws with relation to the liquor traffic in the near future.

To him whom, crowned with honor's bays,
The sovereign people soon will raise
To that high place, where peaceful sways
The scepter Freedom's self obeys,
This tribute of deserved praise
The New York Graphic's poet pays:

The man the Democrats to daze,
To send them on their devious ways,
And fill their souls with wild amaze,
Their buildings shake, their towers raze,
And put their whole shebang ablaze
At the end of the coming election days,
Is—well, we'll call him President Hayes.

The St. Paul Press says: "The mediocrity dodge won't answer, and it won't do either to call Hayes a negative man. One of his chief characteristics is the frank positiveness of his opinions on all political questions. He is neither a demagogue like Bill Allen, nor a shuffler like Hendricks. He has had no canal ring to fight like Tilden, but neither has he ever affiliated with any Boss Tweeds like that great reformer.

Henry Ward Beecher says he does not believe in reviving the anti-war feeling, but is of the opinion the time has not yet come to turn the country over to the Democracy. He was a Blaine man all through, and was sorry to see Mr. Blaine defeated in the convention, but thinks Hayes in every way worthy of the support of the people and hopes to see him elected.

Samuel J. Tilden, as chairman of the platform committee of the Democratic national convention in 1864, reported the resolution, which was adopted, declaring the war for the Union a failure, and demanding a cessation of hostilities. The same Samuel J. Tilden is now Democratic nominee for President of the United States. Has the leopard changed its spots?

The reports of the excessive heat prevailing in the Eastern States, which has prostrated so many persons, and has not spared even the august Senators, will cause us in Oregon to be thankful that we live in a temperate climate, and tend to reconcile us to the gentle showers with which we have been favored for the past months.

Hayes is just the name says the Chicago Journal to carry the English and German vote alike, because commencing in the middle and going one way it spells "yes," while going the other way it reveals the German "yah."

The irrepressible Ben Hill, of Georgia, has "hit the nail on the head at last" When he heard of the nomination of Hayes, his instantaneous ejaculation was "By G ——, they've got us again!"

Henry Thurston, of White Oak Creek, Texas, is seven feet six inches high. An exchange says he is the tallest man in America except Rutherford B. Hayes.

A Minnesota paper says the crop of politicians and office seekers is the only crop which the Minnesota grasshoppers can't get away with.

Sunset Cox pronounces Hayes a "first class man." He ought to know, having been himself an Ohio politician for a long time.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION.

Saturday's Races.

There was a fair attendance at East Portland Park though the travel over the road from the city had been so constant during the week that the dust had become about four inches deep The first race was called at 3 o clock It was a trotting mile heats 3 in 5 mile heats free for all horses owned in Oregon and Washington Territory on the 1st day of April 1876 that had never beaten The entries were S G Reed's b g Parrott Geo Coggan's ch g Mystery and A Warwick's b h Bashaw Pools sold rather slowly at $5 on Parrott to 2 on Mystery and 11 on Bashaw The judges were Wm Gird W A Scoggin and Jerome Porter distance judges A B Hallock W W Thayer and F F Harrison timers W O Scoggin P D W Hardenburg and C P Bacon, starter Levi Knott The horses came to the scratch looking in good condition and were assigned their positions as follows Parrott got the pole, Bashaw second and Mystery outside After four ineffectual scores the horses were started very badly Parrott hardly being in motion and behind the wire thirty feet at the tap, and Mystery having already passed the wire Bashaw being under it They went however and with such a bad send off Parrott had to do some solid work to take the lead He got in his licks lively and came ahead of Mystery before the half mile post was reached and on the third quarter came alongside Bashaw who broke up on the home stretch and Parrott came in winner by three lengths in 2 43 Bashaw second, Mystery a bad third The second heat was a better start than the first and Parrott and Bashaw came up looking fresh as ever but Mystery appeared a little winded and his backers lost pretty much all hope On the first quarter however Mystery took the lead and kept it a short distance when both the others succeeded in overtaking and passing him At the half mile Parrott and Bashaw were neck and neck and doing good work but Bashaw broke up and lost considerable ground, which he was unable to make up and which gave the heat to Parrott in 2 44½, with Mystery again a bad third

On the third heat the horses were ready in starting and looked as little worried by the two heats as by the first one Parrott and Mystery took the lead at first and for some time kept Bashaw "in a pocket" so that had he been speedy enough he would have been prevented from making headway sufficient to pass them He, however broke up twice once on the second quarter and once on the home stretch losing badly by the last and coming under the wire as bad a third on this heat as Mystery on the first and second Parrott won this heat easily in 2 43½, Mystery second The judges awarded Parrott first money, Mystery second and Bashaw third This closed the Centennial races proper and here we feel it but just to the committee having this branch of the programme specially in charge to say that at no races of such importance or where such interest was manifested, have we ever seen less disorder or heard less complaint of unfairness, and we have no doubt that every candid minded person who visited the track during the week's sport will corroborate the generally expressed opinion that as far as the committee and proprietors of the track were concerned, everything was conducted in the most honorable and gentlemanly manner, and so as to give this exciting sport in Oregon a higher character than it has hitherto borne We congratulate the committee and the proprietors on the success which was attained in this branch of the celebration

THE PROPRIETORS' PURSE

Of $100 for a single dash of a mile and a half was the last prize to be contended for, and being free for all horses that had been beaten on the track brought out the following flyers Tom Merry, Ophir, Osceola, Rosa Mansfield and Butralph There was some claim that Butralph had been entered by mistake and his owner refusing to run him in the race he was ruled off the track by the judges who were the same as in the preceding race Osceola's owner also desired to withdraw him, but the decision was that he must go The horses came out all looking in good running fix Osceola excepted, and he showed the same lack of his usual spirit exhibited on the day before The start from the half mile post was a fair send off and as the horses came by the judges' stand it was plain to be seen that Ophir was not yet awake and not likely to be before the end of the race. Osceola had the lead, Mansfield and Merry crowding him closely. On the second half mile however, Osceola again smashed the hopes of his friends, Mansfield and Merry giving him the dust and Ophir gaining on him. On the third half, Merry and Mansfield were both crowded by their riders, and from the judges' stand it was impossible to tell which was ahead until they came under the wire in 2 45½, Tom Merry having about half a length the advantage of the gallant little bay Ophir had in the meantime stirred himself a little and though he made a sorry third to Merry he was leading Osceola who came through very heavily The purse was awarded Tom Merry 1st, $75, Rosa Mansfield 2d $25

Wing Shooting.

At the hour advertised, the steamer J A Cooke left Central wharf Saturday forenoon for the White House, having on board a large number of persons Arriving at that place about 11 o clock the crowd debarked and repaired to the spot designated for the shooting which was near the race track opposite the judges' stand The birds were soon after brought on the ground, and every necessary preparation speedily made The contest came off under the management of Mr H D Sanborn of the executive Centennial Committee and Messrs C S Schenck, A P Ankeny and John Green, the committee appointed to take charge of the wing shooting There were 21 entries at $10 each All preliminaries being arranged, the shooting commenced without delay Messrs John Green and Capt Ankeny acted as judges, C S Schenck referee and Levi Ankeny and B F Goodwin, scorers The birds were thrown from a spring trap placed at a distance of 21 paces from where the person who was shooting stood Each contestant was allowed five shots The contest lasted about two hours. Below we present the score

*Withdrawn name

From the above score it will appear that there were seventeen persons who made [illegible] three who only killed one bird each and one who scored nothing Of those who made [illegible] the shots seven had each killed five birds [illegible]

[illegible]

J W Payne having killed 11 birds without missing a shot, was declared the winner of the first prize—the gold centennial medal and $50 in coin

It was decided by the judges that the second prize—$75 in coin should not be awarded to those making the next best shots (that is of those who had each made 5 good shots) but should be given to the person who should make the next best record among the seven that had each killed four birds This being the decision Lueding and Bybee who made the next best record after having were not entitled to the second and third prizes

The following contestants each made four shots Gearin Bybee, Jeffery Stephens Niles Welsh and Ankeny As the supply of pigeons was about exhausted the judges stated that these persons could settle the difference between themselves by either dividing the money—$75 equally among themselves or determine who was entitled to the prize by shooting again at the White House next Saturday It was finally agreed that the money should be divided up there and to let the contest end so far as the seven persons were concerned.

Those making three shots each were Sears Lamb and Curry The third prize was $50 in coin As there were no birds the contestants decided to shoot off next Saturday at the White House and settle the question as to the awarding of the third prize The contest did not last longer than 1 30 o clock and was quite spirited and lively In all its details it was carried out impartially and in a very satisfactory manner to all concerned

The Single Scull Race.

Last though not least of the contests for Centennial prizes was the single scull race which was originally announced to take place on Thursday but owing to the fact that one of the gentlemen announced to row had withdrawn the trial of speed was deferred until Saturday evening Mr John Holland the chief builder for the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, expressed a desire to pull over the course with any man and Mr H B Loveridge the stroke oar in the winning boat of Thursday, though not confident of winning, acceded to the wish of his friends to make an effort to win the prize—a scull boat He had but little experience in the boat selected, and for that reason had doubts of success. His recent triumph with Carr in the double scull contest gave him as well as his friends great hopes of winning against one who was apparently without practice Mr Holland is well and favorably known in boating circles as a first class oarsman and his friends felt that he had sufficient grit to pull a long race,—even longer than that laid out for this race (2½ miles) He had been practicing quietly in the vicinity of Oregon City and was in condition Mr Richard Harper was chosen judge for Loveridge and Henry Winch for Holland,—these gentlemen selecting Mr F H Lamb as referee The judges and referee and others stepped into a boat and were rowed out in the stream to a point opposite the O S N Co s wharf Shortly after Holland appeared in his boat (a private one owned heretofore by Mr Francis) which weighed probably forty five pounds, with about 18 inches beam Loveridge dropped in line seated in John D Wilcox's pretty new boat Sid, which weighed a trifle over thirty pounds with 14½ inches beam This boat though lighter than the other and for that reason an advantage was rather awkward to the occupant, who had tried it but once before Loveridge was assigned the inside and Holland the outside—these positions being taken by toss for choice A few minutes after 6 o clock, the umpire (the boats being in position) gave the word "go" and the oarsmen were off, though rather slow to take water, Holland having the advantage Loveridge managing badly catching a "crab" after the first few strokes Holland kept his quick, steady stroke up and gained a slight lead. His competitor recovering again, drew up giving promise of making a good race. Before he had reached the foot of Taylor street, he had struck out towards his competitor, steering badly Again recovering, he straightened out and the men now pulled evenly—Holland keeping up a strong pull with quick recovery Loveridge pulled a longer stroke with a slower recovery It was generally conceded that Loveridge's stroke was the prettiest Occasionally Loveridge would lose control of his boat, which afforded the other man a chance to gain The race continued even throughout, the lead alternating at times As the boats came in sight Holland had a slight lead, which he improved as he approached the goal, crossing the line at least three lengths ahead of Loveridge Time 19 30 The latter appeared fatigued His want of knowledge of the boat caused him to lose frequently Before reaching the home line he gave up, rowed to the boat house and entered a claim of foul against Holland He stated that Holland had taken his water two or three times and otherwise impeded him particularly at the stake boat where he claims to have had the inside for the turn, but in rounding made too long a bout Holland dropping inside and as he (Loveridge) was straightening up, Holland locked oars, thus impeding his course The referee in consequence reserved his decision The ending of such a close and exciting contest in this manner caused a great deal of disappointment and is to be regretted The fact that the race was to take place at an hour when most people were enjoying their evening meal was sufficient to warrant the absence of many who would otherwise have been present

The End--Awarding the Prizes.

The most interesting feature of the Centennial week was the awarding of prizes at Turn Halle on Saturday evening From seven o clock till a late hour there was a continuous pouring in of people, including those who were to be the recipients of the various medals and other prizes Bray's full band and orchestra was present at an early hour, and prior to the time appointed for the delivery of the prizes the open space on the floor was occupied by those who desired to 'trip the light fantastic' At nine o'clock the Washington Guard in full uniform filed in and occupied a position in front of the stage, and immediately in their rear stood the members of the Pioneer Base Ball Club Hon J A Chapman, chairman of the Centennial Executive Committee, called the assembly to order and the awarding of prizes was now in order The medals and cup arranged on a revolving stand in full view of the audience, prepared by L C Henrichsen & Co, were of gold with appropriate designs engraved thereon as was also the cup The medals varied in size and cost, according to the number of a kind issued and in the aggregate were valued at about $500 They were exhibited for several weeks in the show window of Henrichsen & Co Proper inscriptions will be added as the winners desire Mr J H Lyon chief engineer P. F D, in behalf of the Centennial committee, the P F D, and the citizens of Portland presented in a few well timed remarks the elegant medal won by Linn Engine Co No 2 of Albany It was received by Mr Weatherford, president of the Company, who responded briefly Mr R C White then read the following poem written by himself and dedicated to the Albany Fire Department by the Portland Fire Department

THE FIRE BOYS

A clang and clash of bells
A wild alarming cry—
A cloud of smoke and tongues of fire
Paint sorrow on the sky
Wan woe is gathering round
The spread is wider higher
At 'Tow' a thousand throats as one
Shriek out the cry of fire.

But see where duty calls
Our red shirt heroes stand
Below the [illegible] tottering walls
A [illegible] and gallant band
To save the poor man's all
Or rich one's ample [illegible]
They face death's horrid and fiery breath
What heroes can do more

They fight—but not to kill
The [illegible] but to save
[illegible]

[illegible] in behalf of the company accepted the medal and in a few words closed with the remark that he was [illegible] which almost broke the captain down, so long was the thought. Mr. Jos. Buchtel next presented the medal won by Willamette Fire Engine Co No. 1 in fitting language, to which Mr Samuel Al Moreland, president of the company responded, accepting the medal in behalf of the company The ten medals designed for the members of the victorious base ball club were presented by Mr Jos Buchtel president of the winning club—the Pioneers with suitable remarks accompanying the same Captain Thompson responded in behalf of the club The members of the club who are to receive the medals are as follows R H Thompson captain and 2d base H B Ridgley pitcher W H Matthews catcher M O Lownsdale short stop J D Wilcox 1st base J D Hoyt 3d base I S Lebeigh left field A S Whiting center field W H Drummond right field and J Lownsdale who played 1st base in the game with the Scorpions and who was scorer in the game with College Club Willis S Duniway who was selected to play with the club in these games and who practiced with them until a week prior to the contests but was obliged to retire will receive a medal similar to the others as a private affair from the club. Much credit is due to Mr Buchtel for his efforts to bring about such a successful termination of the contests and created a feeling of strength among the players of the club He was the life and spirit of the club and to his earnest work its existence is due Mr Wm Kapus presented the medals for best gymnastic exercises in a pleasing manner to the winners—the first to A E Miller and the second to G Castendick The former responded briefly and Mr Castendick with thanks expressed a hope that he would win the first prize at the next Centennial which caused a great deal of laughter

Mr Chas F Speck, chairman of the committee on billiards in language which included many technical terms in billiards, presented the medal to Mr Joshua Davies, who in responding said: "I've worked hard for this neglecting my business, my friends and even my girl, who would have thrown off on me if I had failed" This response was received with great laughter T B Trevett then presented the cup and money prize to Mr H L Pattee, owner and sailer of the winning boat in the regatta—the Rainbow That gentleman responded with thanks The other prizes in money were afterwards presented to the gentlemen representing the Julia Mulliken, Oregonian Owl and Herald which were entitled to prizes in the order named

Messrs J R Carr and H B Loveridge were called to receive the medals won by them in the double scull boat race Mr Trevett presenting the same, The gentlemen were too modest to speak and walked off quietly with the prizes On behalf of Tiger Engine Company J P Wilcox foreman of the company, received the medal, Chief Engineer J H Lyon presenting the trophy

The medals won by James McKay for best rifle shooting and Jos W Payne, for best wing shooting, were received by friends in their behalf these gentlemen not being present. Engineer Mullen of No 3's was the recipient of a pin which was presented to him by the Centennial committee in recognition of his efficient services in keeping the engine of that company in such excellent condition, she being the first of the make brought to this city

Mr H D Sanborn of the Centennial committee, who has been so active in his efforts to bring about a successful termination to each and every amusement, trial or contest, closed the evening's programme in so far as the awards was concerned with a few explanatory remarks Music followed and dancing was resumed, lasting until 12 o'clock And thus closed the Centennial week in Portland which will be long remembered

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the Oregonian

Being present at the distribution of prizes given by the Centennial Committee at Turn Halle on Saturday evening and hearing the remarks of Capt Wilkinson, U S A (one of the committee on military drill) in awarding the prize to the Washington Guard, for being the best drilled company in justice to myself and company I am in duty bound to reply to them

Capt Wilkinson compared the companies not entering for the medal to a man about to purchase a horse and after having examined the animal his courage failed him and he "backed out" also stating that when the other companies in the city saw the Washington Guard marching up Second street they were afraid to compete with them for the prize. Now, Mr Editor, as a great many enquired of me why my company did not enter and to satisfy the public I will be as brief as possible in giving my reasons

1 I was elected to the office of captain only ten days previous to the 4th of July and did not have sufficient time to drill my men to make as good a showing as I chose to do

2 The company consists of a great many members who are also members and officers in the Fire Department and the duties were such previous to the Fourth that they were unable to drill sufficient to make themselves perfect

3 Never having myself before undertaken to drill even a squad I was not capable of teaching the tactics to the company under my command I sincerely trust the above reasons will be sufficient to show why we did not enter, and I promise the citizens of this city that in the course of a few months with strict attention to business to compete with any company in the State We have the material to form a first class company and we will do it

With feelings of the greatest respect for Capt Wilkinson and the Guard I beg to remain gentlemen your obedient servant,

HARRY J McCORMICK

Our correspondent at Eugene City under date of July 7th sends the following

The Granger store which has been incorporated for some time, will open about the 1st of September, under very favorable auspices

Within the last week about twenty families have started across the mountains from Lane county to engage in stock raising in Eastern Oregon

The grain crop of Lane county will be the largest that has been raised for many years and already the farmers have begun preparations for harvest time

Mr C Van Houten met with a very painful accident on the Fourth in a match game of base ball, he having his hand split down about an inch between the third and fourth fingers

In some parts of the county the caterpillars are proving very destructive to gardens, in some instances eating potatoes and corn level with the ground They are not in the least fastidious about what they eat, for when the vegetables are gone they devour fern and dog fennel with equal avidity

Lenger's gardens near town, have begun to draw quite a crowd of Sundays Recently a young lady went out to the grounds, purchased strawberries, ice cream lemonade, etc, in abundance for her friends and had the bill charged to her fellow He says he would pay ten such bills willingly but next time he wants to be along just to see who gets away with the delicacies

The Fourth passed off without an accident of any kind to chronicle The firemen's celebration was quite a success, there being about 2 00 people on the ground Judge Burnett delivered a very fine oration and all were well pleased with the day The Plug-Uglies were not so numerous as on former occasions, and consequently they were not so good The firemen's ball in the evening was a grand success financially and otherwise

Monday a party of ten young gentlemen started out on a hunting and fishing excursion, bound for the neighborhood of the Three Sisters and Fish lake John Campbell was elected captain Curan Osborn, secretary, George Dorris cook and Bob Bean, assistant cook They propose to be gone some four or five weeks, as the following memoranda would intimate, viz side bacon, 300 lbs flour, 250 lbs, beans, 3 sacks, snake-bite remedy, 15 gallons, and one half pound soap They propose the ascension of the south Sister if it be possible at this time of the year.

One of our deputy sheriffs recently had a long chase after a man by the name of Frazier It seems that Frazier married in California and ran off with his sister in law, afterwards came to Oregon, married again, and again ran off with a sister in law. The deputy followed them across the Cascade mountains and finally came up with them on the West Deschutes river He was bound over to appear before the next grand jury in the sum of $1,000, and in default of bail makes No 2 that is boarded by our county free of charge, with great probabilities of his learning the brick-maker's trade in the Oregon penitentiary

The Centennial is over, and our country cousins, as well as the city folks, have had an abundance of amusements. All who have paid a visit to Jos Kohn's clothing house express themselves thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which he treated them

BAKER CITY—BAKER COUNTY AND THE VIRTUE MINE

BAKER CITY, June 24, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The election is over, politics have subsided, and the people of Baker county are bestowing their undivided attention upon the various industrial pursuits which afford them the means of livelihood. Stock growing and mining appear to be the employments that chiefly engage the energies of those outside of this locality. The valley of Powder river is made beautiful by many flourishing farms and in a few years the agricultural interests of this section will become of the first importance in the aggregation of the wealth of the country. That which is so much to your disadvantage just now in Portland the overflow from the melting snow, is the very desirable thing that rejoices the miner and invigorates his hard labor. Every mining camp is now the busy scene of unremitting and hopeful industry. Great expectations are based upon the results of this season's operations, from the universal supply of water, which will enable more work to be done, as the period of profitable mining will be much extended.

Baker City is quiet, in fact, quite dull in a business point of view, from the fact that those who generally crowd it in the winter time are now away at work. There can be no doubt entertained about its being a successful place and of its having prosperity. It is surrounded by so many places of profitable industry, which depend upon it for supplies of various kinds, that it cannot but flourish and [illegible] in consequence.

Your correspondent has visited the Virtue mine, which is situated about eight miles east of Baker City. In company with the intelligent and gentlemanly superintendent, Mr Hyde, it could not be otherwise than gratifying. One is surprised at the amount of work done and the improvements which are being accomplished. Mr. Rockafellow and others discovered this mine in 1863. The shafts now are sunk to 500 feet in depth and the workings are by five levels. The present ore is being taken out from between the second, third and fourth levels principally. One hundred thousand dollars in bullion have been realized in the six months of the present year. The main shaft, the mouth of which opens into the new building where the hoisting works are to be placed, is substantially and admirably timbered down to the lowest level. It presents an opening 8 feet by 4½ feet in extent. It is divided, or partitioned, so that on one side there is a convenient ladder way, [illegible] is made easy, so that free communication with the levels is maintained while the ore buckets are rising and descending. Down this shaft went your correspondent to the third level, where the steam machinery is at work, to keep the lower levels free from obstruction by water; and, by the way, all the water that is pumped from the mine is utilized by the stamp mill, which runs twenty stamps. Furnished with a lighted candle we proceeded along the third level to its breast, a distance of some 400 feet. It was something new, and somewhat exciting, hardly to be described. Cars filled with ore passing you, while you, crouched in a [illegible], to permit them to do so. The "stoping" out in the fourth level in one place had made communication with the [illegible], so that you could look down and see the men at work. The vein matter, or the [illegible], more properly speaking perhaps, inclines considerably, dipping towards the west. The third level communicates with a tunnel 500 feet long, through which the ore is conveyed by cars to the stamp mill. When the new hoisting works are completed, all the ore will be taken out at the main shaft, and the stamp mill moved to a more [illegible] locality, as [illegible] it is too far [illegible] the mine. The new building, 48 feet by 60 feet, for the hoisting works, is a substantial [illegible], containing the furnace built of [illegible], the boilers, engine and necessary machinery for the [illegible]. The great [illegible] the transportation of shoes for the mill and the heavy [illegible]ing, which frequently have to be [illegible], have decided the owners of the mine to erect a foundry of their own, which will soon be in operation, on the site of the old Ruckel stamp mill in Baker City, where there is an excellent water power. At present there are employed in and about the mine some sixty men including carpenters and other mechanics. The mining force is composed of forty men, [illegible] day and night. The chief ownership of the Virtue mine rests with J. W. Virtue, Esq., of this city, and a Mr. Gray, of San Francisco. The enterprise and "push" of these gentlemen as displayed in the Virtue [illegible], entitle them to be successful and prosperous, and we hope they may be so rewarded.

JOHN JONES.

THE TERRITORIES.

Governor Thompson of Idaho has resigned.

[illegible] City celebrated the Fourth with some [illegible] horseraces.

About 5,000 people were present at the [illegible] celebration.

The graduating exercises at the University in Seattle took place Thursday, June 29th.

Mr. Dina Collins, who was one of the first settlers in King county, W. T., died at Seattle last week.

The convent at Cowlitz is being repaired preparatory for school during the coming fall and winter.

Utah papers claim that that Territory will turn out mineral products this year of the value of $12,000,000.

Snake river was so high during the recent freshet that the fish were drowned, and many [illegible] ones are to be seen lying along its banks. So says an exchange.

Report comes to us that the farmers on Cowlitz prairie are preparing to harvest immense crops of grain. One man, Jos. Henriot, has 250 acres of grain to cut this year.

Jas. Wilson was indicted and tried at the [illegible] term of the Kalama court for grand larceny. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to one year in the jail in Olympia and all costs.

The Transcript says: The delinquent tax list for Pierce county is largely made up of taxes on terminus lands and town lots. The Tacoma Land Co. being represented to the extent of about 12,000 acres, valued at $30,000, and taxed for $575. The names of only a few residents of the county appear in the list.

An effort is now on foot to construct a bridge over the Nesqually river, about four miles above Wagner's ferry, on the new road leading from Yelm prairie to Nesqually plains. Citizens in both Thurston and Pierce counties are interested in the project, and they may succeed in carrying the bridge to successful completion.

A worker of modern miracles was at Olympia last week, and is said to have cured an ulcer and a case of dyspepsia; both cases having long resisted medical treatment. The [illegible] no medicines of any kind, but only [illegible] the patients and repeated certain passages of Scripture. The Courier says the cures are well authenticated, but we are a little skeptical.

A celebration was held at Napavine station, on the N. P. railroad on the Fourth. Dr. C. C. Pagett delivered the oration, which was pronounced very good. About three hours after he finished speaking, he was taken suddenly sick—so very ill that for a time fears were entertained that he would not survive the attack. He has conquered the spell, however, and is now about well.

Eight thousand four hundred and seventy-five tons of coal were shipped from Seattle to San Francisco during June. The exports to the same place since the 1st of January last aggregate 53,138 tons, the Seattle company sending away 30 cargoes of 37,631 tons, the Talbot Company, 11 cargoes of 8024 tons, the Renton Company, 10 cargoes of 7,483 tons. Fifty-one ship loads in all. For the same time last year there were 53 shipments, of a little less than 27,000 tons, showing the use of larger vessels this year and the export of double the quantity of coal.

The Seattle coal mines are about three miles inland on the eastern shore of Lake Washington. A thriving village is growing up there, and it has already from forty to fifty families, besides a large number of single men. It is called Newcastle, and supports a store, shoe shop, meat market, two eating houses and three saloons. It has also a school house, and the Methodist Episcopal society is building a church there. For a time services will be conducted by clergymen from Seattle, but with the growth of population it is thought a resident pastor will soon be required.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Mr. Henry Bolton of Chase river coal mine has had his leg broken in two places.

Dog poisoning is common at New Westminster, and the council offers a reward of $50 for the conviction of the offender.

The Fraser is receding, but the damage caused by the high water will take nearly the entire revenue of the year to repair.

The coal export still keeps active. Several vessels have just left with full cargoes; others are arriving and others again loading.

The river is now about eight feet below the highest point at Yale, and is falling [illegible]. It is now thought that the high water is over for the season.

About 45 German families, numbering 300 souls, are preparing to settle on the splendid lands in the rear of Langley, and a road is to be built for their accommodation.

A daughter, six years of age, of Mr. James Ellard, of New Westminster, fell into the Fraser on Monday last and was being carried away by the current when Mr. Alex Ewen jumped in and at the risk of his own life saved her.

THE SEA-SIDE HOUSE,

CLATSOP BEACH,

IS NOW OPEN FOR THE RECEPTION OF VISITORS.

J. C. OLMSTED.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, UNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort are too well known to Oregon fans to repeat here. To strangers I will say that the place is in plain sight, and across the Bay from Astoria, on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and Lighthouse, on Baker's Bay, a beautiful sheet of water, unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, its mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrians or walkers is one of the most delightful Panoramas to the eye ever witnessed. The cosy beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens, moist old Tillamook, in the blue distance.

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.

The Salt Water Bathing in the bay, within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold winds for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks stretching out into the ocean, from which fishers take from the sea Bass, Rockfish, Tom Cod, Porgies, etc., etc. Crabs, Clams, Oysters, &c., in abundance, (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency of those desirable adjuncts.) Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children, Teams to the Weather Beach, Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.

Prices reduced from the old tariff.

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free. Groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc., for sale at a small profit. Campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer, at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Ten Pin Alleys attached to the place.

Stage Office to Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells, Fargo & Co's office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs, and more beautiful tracks and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the Landlord has, is that his house is not larger; but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.

C. H. DEXTER, Proprietor.
